

What am I here for?

In our life's journey, we all ask this question. For some, it is asked at rock-bottom with anxiety or depression looming like a dark shadow. For others, it's asked with obligation and financial commitments driving their 9-5 grind. Your unique situation or personality might steer you in multiple directions, but the answer remains the same. Your purpose is only found in Jesus Christ!

You can change jobs, spouses, hobbies, achievements, and they may definitely bring you momentary satisfaction, but nothing will fill that void that we all wake-up to eventually. Because we are human beings, not human doings, our purpose can never found in the what; it is found in the WHO.

Here's the beautiful dichotomy; in our transformational discovery of the WHO (which is Jesus), we unfold our WHAT, and often our HOW. The challenge is set before you. Will you shift your energy to Jesus and then let all the rest of the puzzle pieces fall into place? He's so excited to fill you up so He can use you in ways BEYOND your wildest imagination!
